

Priority #4 : Take care of workers

The key to solving the public system's problems is to improve our working conditions. We need to stem the exodus of workers because of poor conditions.

Better work-life-study balance

Balancing work with our personal lives is a challenge. We need arrangements that make it possible for us to take care of both the public and our families.

Better support for ailing workers

Many employees have to take disability leave. Our workload is heavy and it affects our physical and psychological health. Employers are putting too much pressure on employees when they are on disability. That has to stop!

Fight violence through prevention

The pandemic has shown how much more must be done on the health and safety front to keep us safe. Prevention is the key to avoiding accidents. We need PPE. Prevention is also the way to curb acts of violence against staff. Employers and government must tackle the problem at its source!

Do more for the environment

The climate crisis is directly impacting our work. Taking care of people affected by climate change will be a big part of our job if nothing is done. Action must be taken to address the crisis.
